tenderly as a
barber trimming
it off i
sing my songs, like
a barber stropping
a razor, i rage.

Born 1930 in Yonkers, Joel Oppenheimer has lived most of his life in New York, where he has been since the early fifties a leader in the American poetry scene. Only Paul Blackburn & Frank O'Hara have done as much to render New York City in modern American verse. Oppenheimer attended various universities, including Black College (1950-53), without winning a degree, & he has appeared in the important magazines & anthologies, including the legendary New American Poetry. His books include The Dutiful Son, The Love Bit, & most recently, In Time, publisht by Bobbs-Merrill in 1969.
